

Aer Lingus

Sector Focus: Transportation

Aer Lingus is a major international airline that serves destinations throughout Europe, North America and the Middle East. Based in Ireland, the company manages its North American operations out of this office in Jericho, New York. Relocating from another space in Melville, New York, Aer Lingus worked with Thomas Stack of The Phillips Group Long Island and Paul Rosen of David G. Rosen, Inc., a Knoll dealer, to design a workplace that maximizes efficiency of operation and increases communication among its employees. These goals—and more—were achieved using the Equity® office system by Knoll.

Equity 120-degree planning serves a variety of functions at this location, which houses a customer service call center, marketing personnel and general management. Equity 120 maximizes usable space in the call center, cover, while providing employees with a sense of openness and ample access to natural light. Essentials Pro task chairs by Jeffrey Bennett provide ergonomic support. The marketing area at Aer Lingus, left, follows a similar model, with added Series 2 personal storage. Lastly, the kitchen is outfitted with KnollStudio® Propeller® tables and Sprite chairs by Ross Lovegrove.